

Washington, DC – U.S. Congressman Ciro D. Rodriguez (TX-23) encourages constituents to learn about Recovery Act changes that could impact them this tax season.

“Tax season is here again. Across the 23rd Congressional District, taxpayers are wading through schedules and forms and doing that annual last-minute scramble to the post office to meet the April 15th deadline. I want middle class families to know about how Recovery Act legislation passed last year can help them save money. From assistance in paying for college to refunds on some home improvements, there are more than a dozen new tax credits – some worth thousands of dollars – that working families can cash in on this tax season. To make it easier, now taxpayers can see for themselves what credits they’re eligible for – and how to collect on them – by using the new Tax Savings Tool on my website at www.rodriquez.house.gov
